

Five of Pentacles

Traditional meaning:

There is good around you if you open your eyes and see it. Things may feel rough but really they aren't that bad. Look around you and see the opportunities that are there.

My Interpretation:

There is a man and a woman trudging along, looking down, even though the skies are blue, the clouds are white, and a beautiful archway is just over their heads. The woman holds a staff and she seems very "Mary" like to me, making him Joseph. They have decent clothes on although nothing fancy.

The arch has five pentacles in across shape, as well as floral decorative elements – but the ledge seems encased in snow, which goes with their warm clothing. Is it a snowy day? Are they going past the church but unable to enter? Why do they not see the beauty that is there?

