

Seven of Rods

Traditional meaning:

The other rods represent other points of view. The person is strong in their beliefs, and is able to take on those other views with strength. It can take courage, but the position is a stable one.

My Interpretation:

A student type. He seems to have a student type hat, maybe from Italy. A student robe, too. He holds a staff before him in almost a defensive way, as if protecting himself. Six rods seem to clamor for his attention in front of him. All wanting to be heard and paid attention to. He is aware of them, but he is also cautious, wanting to take his time and be sure of what he is doing. He wants to make sure he is discriminating about what he takes in from their needs.
